SPONSORED TUITION AT UC BERKELEY EXTENSION
FREE UNIVERSITY EXTENSION COURSES FOR ELIGIBLE UC BERKELEY STAFF EMPLOYEES

During fiscal year 2017, Central HR, in cooperation with UC Berkeley Extension (Extension), is providing free tuition for eligible employees for one course from selected Extension courses.

Sponsored Tuition Program Description:
At UC Berkeley, workforce learning and development is a joint, on-going effort on the part of employees, supervisors, and the campus. Employees should discuss available UC Berkeley Extension courses with their supervisors to determine which courses can develop skills for current or future job duties and are a good fit with development plans and career goals. Employees must plan and receive supervisor approval for leave arrangements if they want to attend a course during working hours. A list of the approved classroom based and online courses is attached to this program description.

Note: Enroll Anytime self-paced online courses are not eligible for prepayment of tuition.

Prior to enrollment, the employee must
- Satisfy eligibility requirements (listed below)
- Obtain the support and signature of his/her supervisor to attend the course
- Sign a waiver allowing information to be given to UC Berkeley about enrollment and course completion.

Eligible employees may receive sponsored tuition for one (1) approved course per Fiscal year (7/1/2016 – 6/30/2017). Employees are responsible for incidental expenses such as books and lab fees. Failure to complete a course will cause you to become ineligible to take future courses offered through the Central HR Sponsored enrollment program.

Eligibility Requirements:
UC Berkeley staff employees must be in an eligible personnel program or participating bargaining unit. Beginning in FY 2016, sponsored tuition is aligned with STAR eligibility criteria. Employees who are eligible for the Staff Appreciation and Recognition (STAR) program are eligible for the sponsored tuition program, if they meet all of the following criteria:
