

BERKELEY CAREER OPPORTUNITIES AND RESOURCES FOR EQUITY

I really enjoyed this program and feel that I was able to gain a lot of wisdom and knowledge that is relevant and applicable as I'm planning and interviewing for potential positions...

Having such a supportive group of people was impactful. Our facilitators and instructor were so refreshingly honest. It made the class so much more meaningful.

ABOUT

The Berkeley Career Opportunities and Resources for Equity program is an experience for staff employees committed to their upward career advancement and for supervisors who are in a position to exercise their sphere of influence to diversify the leadership ranks at the university.

SPRING 2024 SCHEDULE

Understanding Your Purpose and Setting Your Goal

04/10/24

People who identify in a non-dominant racial, ethnic, gender, and divers-ability way often don't have the luxury of aimlessly going to "find themselves".

Building Your Personal Advisory Board

04/24/24

Sometimes phrased, "It takes a village" people who identify with nondominant communities know the importance of unity, collective responsibility and being one's brother's keeper.

The Lay of the Land

05/08/24

This workshop will examine barriers in practices and policies that systematically and effectively prevent the attainment of a diverse workforce.

Master Your Story in the Resume

05/22/24

This workshop will focus on the development of a resume that tells a compelling story and makes the case for the excellence the participant brings to the role.

Master Your Story in the Interview

06/05/2023

This workshop will examine strategies for performing a successful interview that conveys the talents and assets the participant would bring to their desired role.
