

Berkeley People Management:

Power Skills Series and Certificate

Berkeley People & Culture's People & Organization Development team presents the BPM: Power Skills Program open to participants across the UC system.

Through this series of live half or full day, instructor led Zoom workshops, managers, supervisors, and team leads will obtain the Power Skills necessary to take their people management to the next level.

What are Power Skills?

In our ever-evolving world, these non-technical, role-agnostic skills are necessary for navigating the parameters of our unique higher education system.

Power Skills, which are also called soft skills, transferable skills, or human skills, are skills we must acquire and practice to be successful people leaders. People Managers use these skills daily to enable individuals on their teams to interact successfully, navigate change, and drive overall success in the workplace.

HOW DO YOU WANT TO GROW TODAY?

All of our workshops are highly interactive and provide attendees with the opportunity to learn from expert facilitators as well as their peers in the room. We encourage you to take all of the workshops in order to earn the BPM: Power Skill Certificate, but feel free to sign up for any session that interests you.

In addition to learning and practicing the main content of the sessions, attendees will leave each workshop with a deeper professional network that they can call upon at any time as they navigate the often tricky business of people management at the University of California.
